INCREASE SEEN.

Exportation of Meats Jumped During August Over Same Month Last Year.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—It is shown by the monthly statement of foreign commerce issued by the department of commerce and labor, that during August there was a substantial increase in the exportation of American foodstuffs, which include meat and meat products, despite the black eye which the outcry about packing methods was thought to give this class of trade.

Of foodstuffs in crude condition and of food animals, $12,081,895 were exported during August, against $8,632,581 in August, 1905. Of foodstuffs partly or wholly prepared the exportations were valued at $27,512,138 during August, against $23,716,734 for the corresponding period last year. There was also a substantial increase in other classes of exports. In fact the only falling off was in crude materials for manufacturing, which were worth $2,514,826 during August, 1906 and $26,378,140 during the same period of 1905.

The total of domestic exports for August was $127,960,101, against $115,060,945 for August, 1905. The total imports for August were $105,669,616, against $95,831,138 for August, 1905. England took more American exports than last year, but Germany $1,500,000 less. China took only $1,395,015 of American goods in August, against $3,209,270 in August, 1905.

For the eight months ending Aug. 30, 1905, American exports to China were worth $41,390,966, but for the eight months ending Aug. 30, 1906, reached a value of only $22,316,216. The decrease is due to the anti-American boycott.

CZAR AIDS PLOT.

Subscribes $12,500 to League Which Incites Killing of Russian Hebrews.

New York, Sept. 29.—A special copyright cable to the Times from St. Petersburg says:

"It is announced today that the notorious Rutenkovsky and his assistant, Komisharov, who were denounced by Prince Unassoff in the Duma as the chief organizers of pogroms, have been restored to the active list of the ministry of the interior by Premier Stoylin. 'Rutenkovsky was head of the secret printing department of the ministry of the interior, in which pamphlets and brochures inciting the people against 'white and the Jews were printed, and Komisharov, an officer of the general staff, was his chief assistant in this official position.

"At the instance of M. Stolyin the czar has made a grant of 25,000 rubles ($12,500) to the League of the Russian Empire, which is now endeavoring to organize a pogrom in Odessa and is suspected of having brought about the recent massacre in Siedlee.

"This further evidence of the sympathy of the government with the pogromists has created a great sensation here. The times alarm prevails throughout the Jewish community."

JAP SEAL RAIDS.

Returning Schooners Report Many Encounters Far North.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29.—The sealing schooner City of San Diego has arrived at Victoria and reports that armed Japanese raiders made raids at Copper Island, firing on the tents of the guards stationed there before attacking the rookeries. Twenty Japanese have been killed during the past summer as well as a number of Russians.

The City of San Diego saw twenty-five Japanese schooners in Bering Sea. They were clustered about the seal islands, shooting right and left.

Several American boats have good catches and took some sea otter.

Capt. Folger's schooner is the first of the homeward procession of pelagic sealers. He asserts that while the Japanese were harvesting a big catch, the Victoria fleet, compelled to remain twenty leagues off shore, had had poor luck. The Eva Marie, Columbia and Casco are headliners, each with over 700. The Casco also has twelve line sea otter and the City of San Diego, one.

Pomeroy, O., Sept. 29.—Middleport bank, a private institution at Middleport, Ohio, failed to open its doors yesterday. It is stated that the greater part of its deposits, amounting to $115,000, are missing. Great excitement prevails. Most of the depositors are poor people. The president of the bank, E. C. Fox, is away, and in his absence no official statement of the condition of the bank has been made.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

There was a time when the whole solar system was nothing more than a nebulous ball.

Dr. Emilie Fischer, who four years ago won the Nobel prize for chemistry, has discovered, he declares, that coal is edible. He has been making an extract of coal and finds that this extract has the same nutritive qualities as are possessed by beefsteak and eggs.

Tests made in London show that the electric traction lines of that city set in motion earth currents of electricity which can be distinctly recorded by delicate instruments in the New observatory, six miles distant from the lines of the electric railroads. The marks made upon a sensitive surface are so plain that they form a virtual time table of the electric traction lines.

EIGHT FIGHT FOUR HUNDRED

Desperate Bravery of British Soldiers Attacked in Woods by Zulu Army.

RESISTED TILL HELP CAME

Captain Clerk, Wounded in Five Places, Continued to Fire His Revolver at Yelling Blacks—Aid Arrived Just in Time.

When the history of the present native rebellion in Zululand comes to be written one incident will stand out from among all others with striking clearness, the gallantry of Captain Clerk of Royston's horse and a band of seven brave men, who held 400 natives at bay until assistance arrived. Wounded by assegais and ball, weary with their march and faint from loss of blood, they fought as long as they could stand, and when too weak to do this they propped themselves against trees and died.

At the time of the attack Clerk and his men were hunting through the dense bush of Nkandha forest.

Suddenly a black figure rose out of the dense undergrowth and fired point blank at the captain. The bullet missed him and struck the third man, inflicting a nasty wound.

This was the signal for a general onslaught. The little party had, in spite of precautions, walked right into an ambush.

Immediately the bush became full of black bodies, clustering together in the undergrowth like bees as they drew near to get a clear throw for their assegais and an uninterrupted sight for their rifles and the guns with which all were armed.

Clerk turned and emptied the magazine of his carbine among the blacks, while the others continued to pour round after round independently into the black mass which was straining every nerve to get among the Europeans.

While so occupied Clerk failed to notice that his comrades had fallen back into the donga, which offered more shelter, and by the time he realized it he was left alone.

Drawing his revolver, he fired as he retreated, when suddenly he was opposed by two natives more intrepid than the rest. One raised his assegai and the next moment Clerk would have been a dead man, but with a cool aim he brought him to the ground with a bullet through his arm. Instantly the other jumped from the left and aimed a deadly blow at Clerk's head, which he parried with his carbine, the assegai just cutting into the flesh over the eye.

With the shock of the blow Clerk reeled and fell, turning a somersault on the sloping hillside, but in a trice he was on his feet again and facing the native, whom he shot through the chest, killing him instantly.

Without further mishap Clerk rejoined his men, and together they fought in the donga for dear life.

Captain Clerk was wounded in five places. Troopers Hawkins and Harding were killed. Troopers Holmes, Flynn and Woolnough were badly wounded. Corporal Alexander was killed with an assegai. By this time the prospect was becoming hopeless.

Although bearing five wounds, Captain Clerk managed to load his carbine and to fire away as long as his strength lasted, and when he found it too much for him he took to his heavy revolver.

All this time Clerk and Holmes continued to shout for help.

Colonel Royston heard the cries and without pausing for a moment made a dash for the spot.

It was no easy matter to force their way through the bush as fast as they wished, but E. Ston's men came on as quickly as possible and were just in time.

PLOWING HILLSIDES.

Plowing Around or in Lands—Diagonal Planting Does Not Wash Out.

I live in a very hilly section and therefore have to plow more or less of this hilly land. I have some fields that have 5, 10 and 15 per cent grade. Such fields as these I go around the whole field or plow it in lands, whichever is most convenient. I have no trouble with such fields washing either in the up and down plowing or the sideways of the hill. But when I come to steeper grades than these I plow with the hill and have never had any trouble with their washing if such fields are planted to either corn or potatoes or any crop that has to be cultivated. I furrow or mark out for planting diagonally of the hill and in this way it will not wash; never as badly as it would if marked out and cultivated up and down the hill. I have an example of planting up and down the hill this year in a piece of potatoes. It was a narrow strip about 30 rows wide by 200 long. The narrow way was up and down the hill, so to save so much turning around in cultivating I planted all one way. The consequence is that between the rows all the loose soil is washed to the bottom of the hill, whereas if I had planted diagonally across the narrow way the water would have gathered in so much less quantities that it would not have washed any of it away.

Gullies From the Seed Drill.

My land has more or less gravel and sand mixed with the soil and I have to be very careful when I seed down a piece for meadow not to leave any wheel marks up and down the hill with the drill, for if I do water will be almost sure to gather in these wheel marks and it is but a short time before a trench or gully is formed. I have such a gully now in one of my fields that was from four to six feet deep and twelve feet wide that started from the little mark that was left by the drill as I came from the field after drilling in my rye in September. In clay or heavy land probably there would not be so much danger of washing. It is very hard for a team to plow or do any hard pulling up a steep hill, but directly or diagonally across it they will go easily, and when done in this way I have never seen any bad results from washing on my farm, and I have lived on this farm for over fifty years, concludes a writer in Rural New Yorker.

Items in Cider Making.

The old fashioned method of preparing pomace for pressing is the best, says a writer on cider making. Upon a layer of rye straw is placed a layer of pomace, then more straw and more pomace until the press is filled. After this cheese, as it is called, is pressed the first time the pressure may be relaxed and the cheese stirred up with a crowbar. Then the pressure should be applied again.

After the cider has been all squeezed out it may be placed in casks with bungholes uncorked and left for several weeks to work. Then the bungles can be put in place and the cider is ready for use.

After the cider is drawn off for the first time it can be clarified by breaking and dropping twelve or more eggs in the barrel. This is especially good practice if it is intended to bottle the cider.

The Finger Board.

There is such a thing as putting on too much manure at a time. The soil cannot use more than about so much at a time. Better put on a little at a time and do it often than to waste it by applying too much at once.

Draining makes heavy soil better. How? Makes it dry in wet times; it can be worked earlier in the spring; the land will not bake; it is warmer; it is more productive. Any land on your farm that needs draining? Now is the time to do it.

Whenever you find a man who has hardwood ashes to sell, close a bargain with him quick. Ashes are just the thing for all garden crops.

Pigs should be crowded so that they will be fat and ready for market early. Don't forget that the milk fed calf needs water to drink.—Farm Journal.

Fall Planting.

Early fall planting in September and October before the leaves are off the trees may be a new idea to many people, but it is excellent practice, as the leaves have plenty of time to become established before winter sets in. If the wood is ripe the foliage can be picked off several weeks before frost.—Garden Magazine.

An Ounce of Salt.

An ordinary tablespoonful of common salt, dry, weighs almost exactly one ounce.

CLAY FARM,--- 1 1/2 Miles from this City.

This elegant Farm containing 108 acres, has been placed with us for immediate sale. We believe it would be difficult to find a more desirable place, either as a money maker or in more pleasant location. The place will carry 25 cows, summer and winter, and produces about 70 tons of hay. The soil is especially rich and productive, being well adapted for any crop. Tillage land lays well. Pasture can be plowed, and for its size cannot be beat in the county. The cut gives an idea of the buildings, but the place must be seen to be appreciated. Nice water and plenty of fruit and wood. We will be pleased to show you this property and tell you about the income derived from it. Large photograph at office. Call any time. Open every evening except Thursday.
